Regulation

The performance of the SCM function is measured by reporting regularly on a set of KPI's.

The Company uses a number of HSES and SP performance criteria when selecting contractors and placement and management of contracts.

The importance of HSES and SP is clearly outlined in contracts and to contractors. The consequences of any breach of HSES and SP requirements is included in the tender documents, contract terms and conditions.

Maximize business value and the achievement of long-term commercial benefits are delivered via the following efforts:

- Effective management of the demand for goods, services and works;
- Reduction of Costs from third-party spend and the lowering of risks associated with the supply of goods, services, and works;
- Timely and effective contracting and procurement support to the business.

All the SCM processes are transparent and controllable. The Company develops and implements procedures and control frameworks to adequately screen all contractors prior to awarding contracts to ensure they are a credible business entity.

Supply chain transparency and performance is reported to the shareholders monthly through a suite of agreed KPI' and various reports, together with shareholders participation in collegiate bodies.

Efficiency of the Company's Supply chains is supported by the application of tools and techniques including the concept of total cost of ownership (TCO) by the application of the category management methodology and other commercial instruments and approaches.

Continuous efficiency and performance improvement is supported by:

- Development of staff competency;
- Applying advanced international SCM practices, including application of Category Management processes ;
- Where applicable the engagement of external expertise to develop and implement best practices etc.;
- Effecting benchmarking within the industry;
- Internal reviews to eliminate existing poor practices.

Anti Bribery and Corruption (ABC) measures are supported by the following:

- Ensure that Company employees are fully aware of the consequences of any infringement of ABC principles;
- Ensure that all contractors are aware of the Company's requirements regarding any infringement of ABC principles;
- Conducting audits, in particular for those activities which are the most vulnerable to potential breaches of the Company's ABC requirements for example selection of contractors, pre-qualification assessment, tender evaluation , etc.

Fair Competition in the market is promoted via the recognized category management processes of contractor selection.

While considering fair competition and in order to maximize Russian content and develop Russian contractors the Company will give preference to Russian contractors during contractor selection. In the absence of any Russian contractors the Company will give due consideration and preference to international contractors who can demonstrate high levels of Russian content in the fulfillment of a contract scope.
